Senior Center Director announces retirement

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. – St. Clair Street Senior Center Director Linda Burt has announced her retirement effective Jan. 30, 2014.

Before joining the City of Murfreesboro, she was the Executive Director of the Riverton Senior Center in Riverton, Wyoming from 1998 to 2008. Prior to that Burt served the aging population in retirement communities, assisted living facilities, personal care homes, and memory care centers.

While Director of St. Clair Street Senior Center, she has been committed and focused on improving the center and the quality of life for the center's participants with many new programs, technology, functional additions, and services.

Burt said she has thoroughly enjoyed being a part of the City, and has a great appreciation for the excellent team of City employees and administrative staff.

"I definitely have mixed emotions about retiring from the City and leaving the great staff of the senior center and the many patrons," she said. "But I am also excited about pursuing some new opportunities."

After retirement from the City, Burt will be completing her doctorate in early 2014, and is looking forward to new adventures and a new journey to improve health in America, and especially the health of the aging population. She will be doing research and will also be a guest lecturer at a prestigious university.
